It is probably true that almost every man has in him certain qualities which would draw some woman to him, but it is difficult to frame a statement in general terms of "What Women Like in Men." This is the task which a very well-known author, under the non-descript of Roffor Pike, has undertaken in "The Cosmopolitan for July in a clever essay, which proves him to have made woman the subject of thorough observation and comprehensive study. "The foreign girl," says the author, "marries the man with whom she will be happy, the American marries the man without whom she will be unhappy."

Ex-Parisian in Trouble.

The Enquirer, of Wednesday, in a dispatch from Chicago, says: The arrest of Warren Stoner, the Paris (Ky.) horseman, at the race track yesterday evening caused something of a sensation among the big delegation of turfmen from the Blue Grass State when it became known. Evidence in the possession of William Pinkerton, makes it appear that Stoner, with Conklin Jones, another follower of the horse race, and a party by the name of Stuart had laid their plans for swindling on a gigantic scale.

Friday afternoon Mr. Pinkerton, it is said, was apprised from Kansas City that Stoner, Jones and Stuart had had a lot of blank drafts printed in the name of the Farmers' National Bank, of Topeka, and payable at the Third National Bank, of New York, and had taken a train for Chicago.

The fact that there is no such institution as the Farmers' Bank of Topeka makes it more certain that a fraud was being planned. No attempt was made at passing the bogus drafts until yesterday, when Stoner, as detailed, offered Booker John Coleman, in payment of a debt or a wager for $100.50 draft of the Farmers' Bank, of Topeka, Kan., in the sum of $1,000. It was then that Mr. Pinkerton who had followed him into the ring arrested him. No other drafts were found in his possession. In the evening, however, the apartment of Stoner and Jones at the Auditorium Annex was searched, and it is said, 97 blank drafts similar to the one in evidence at the race track were found in a valise in the room.

A later dispatch to the dailies yesterday says: "Warren W. Stoner and Conklin Jones, the two young Southwesterners who were arrested Monday afternoon at the instance of Wm. A. Pinkerton, on the charge of attempted fraud at the Washington Park race course, were discharged to-day. According to Mr. Pinkerton, their arrest was 'practically a mistake.' "There was no evidence to show that either Stoner or Jones forged anybody's name on the drafts used, or that the drafts were not good. Both men threaten to sue for damages."

Some Sledgehammer Blows.

We talk about jobbery and rottenness in the big cities, when it is right here under our nose.

The voters of Paris have not heretofore known the state of things we are coming to in that little ring, the old council.

When the Councilmen stand up and swear to do the law and their duty according to law, they represent the people as against everybody dealing with the people. When a contract or a bill is presented, standing for the people, they should say whether it is right or too much or just. But how can they do this if they are concerned in the trade or the money is coming to one of them. You see why the law tries to protect us by forbidding a Councilman to deal with the city or work for the city or have an account for services. They are not looking out for the people, they are then looking out for their own interests.

Then Ashbrook brings in a big bill; you reckon he fights for us and tries to protect us and to get the council to cut it down. I guess NOT. When Mr. Remington brings in his account for printing, does he sweat any for the people to reduce it. I guess NOT. Would it not be a mighty big temptation for Ashbrook to feel like standing up for Remington so Remington would feel that it was mean to oppose Ashbrook's bill. Then would it not take a powerful sight of nerve for the other members of the council to have to stand right up before these two and say your bill is high. That would look so mean.

Ashbrook and Remington would feel like not speaking to them or having anything from them. This would be placing the other members in such a trying position. It is not their own money. People, it is yours, and it would be just too utterly mean to object right before their very eyes. So let her pass. Men representing only the people and not their own private bills might say they could let the printing at the lowest bid and save a lot of money. Men, not placed in such an embarrassing situation, might think that the City Attorney, who is drawing a big salary, should do the lawing and no additional lawyer's account was necessary and save that money for you, People. But when Mr. Ashbrook brings in a bill it would be so mean to say a word against it.

Councilmen ought not to be put to any such trials as this. Let's have a new set of men that will not have any bills of their own or do any trading with the city, against the law, while in office. This will get the old council out of all this embarrassment about Mr. Ashbrook's bills and Mr. Remington's accounts and stop all from this illegal doings.

A Nice Mess.

Indictments for gambling at the Western Kentucky Asylum for the Insane were returned Wednesday against the following persons: W. A. Lackey, first assistant physician; J. W. Campbell, City Judge.

Couldn't Bluff the Parson.

Rev. E. G. Walk, at Kokomo, Ind., a minister of the Christian church, preached the funeral of a child of divorced parents, taking as his text, "When my father and mother forsake me my Lord will take me up." He bitterly assailed divorces and handled the topic with such severity that Otto Jackson, a brother of the child's mother, demanded an apology at the open grave and threatened personal violence to the preacher, who declined to retract or be intimidated.

Rev. Walk is well known in this city, his father, Rev. David Walk, having been pastor of the Christian Church for many years.

Death Of "McGinty."

About eleven years ago, one rainy night there wandered into the office of the Windsor Hotel, when it was under the management of Major Henry Turney, a yellow cur dog. Something in the looks of the animal attracted the attention of Mr. Turney, and he gave him a square meal, adopted him and named him "McGinty." From that day until last Tuesday McGinty was the inseparable friend of the Major, and a more faithful friend no one ever had.

McGinty was a born fighter. It was the proud boast of his friends that he was never whipped. Although he carried the relic of hard fought battle, still he was never known to run or to waiver when attacked by a dog of any size. But old age and other afflictions proved too much for the canine warrior, and on Tuesday last he gave up the struggle and passed away to the heaven provided for all good dogs. He was given a burial befitting his character, and over his grave a stone was placed bearing the simple title "McGinty."

A Request.

PARIS, KY., June 26, 1901.

EDITOR BOURBON NEWS.

Please request the Democrat to publish word for word the law which it claims gave Dick McCarny $1,500 for the bank tax suits, when he never collected the money at all and when the council had paid its city attorneys a big salary for collecting it (to say nothing of a mere bagatelle of $1,500 bonus to Councilman Ashbrook). I don't want the Democrat to tell me what the law is, but I want to see it in print, copied, so we taxpayers can see if it pays a man for doing what he don't do. I reckon its on same page with the law which gives Councilman Ashbrook $1,500 and other sums too numerous to mention out of the city's money.

Wainemore, the property of Talbot Bros. won the next at odds of three and one-half and four to one. Mand Gonne, owned by Turney Bros., also finished first at six to one. The book makers were hit hard. The Paris sports all backing the winners, and several nice rolls are this morning stored away in the pockets of those who were "foxy."
